More Notes About Cherishing and Love

The Psychology of Love
 "why we stray," and why love can make people do irrational things. "A brain romantically in love looks just like a brain on cocaine!" explains Gagnon. "It is a chemically induced high." Gagnon believes that by studying quantifiable information, including hormones and brain function, we can better understand love's peaks and lows.

Cherisher Defined:

1. a person who shows great tenderness for someone or something
2. an individual who clings fondly to a hope, idea, or belief
